Reed loved the great out of doors. He enjoyed camping, hunting, fishing, travel and birding with family and friends. He also enjoyed helping people, building and repairing things. Reed was quite a gardener and shared the produce with neighbors and friends.

After graduating from Lincoln High in Orem he followed his interest in carpentry by attending a carpentry class in night school. He apprenticed at Hill Field building on the small arms plant. From there he went to Tri State Lumber Co. in Provo as a box maker, from there he worked as a cabinet maker for Spear Lumber Co. also in Provo where he became a master cabinet maker. He also became a journeyman carpenter, a machinist, and was proficient at electric and gas welding. Reed was also proficient in copper art and wood carving.

While working he followed a lifetime passion for flying under the tutelage of Merrill Christopherson and eventually earned his Private Pilot license.

Reed did his tour of duty in the Army Air Force during WWII. Most of his time as an instrument flying instructor for pilots. He earned his bachelor's degree in industrial education at Utah State University, a Masters degree at BYU. He continued his studies throughout his profession as a teacher earning the equivalent of a triple major; industrial arts, building construction and guidance counseling. He taught a total of thirty eight years in Utah and California.

Because of the move to California Reed found it necessary to go into business in order to have a retirement. At one time he, his wife and partners operated five businesses while teaching full time.
